Most probably you know the story of Globe Wernicke, the stackable bookcase system.

Simple yet geniusly designed, these bookcases had unique, patented connectors on the sides.

Unfortunately, after this patent ended, the factory soon had to close its doors.

In the years that followed many good and bad copies emerged of only the simplest versions. Later, because of the price competition, these simple models also lost the famous connectors and scissor system.

In 1998 Janssen Furniture looked at the original bookcases from the thirties. They were impressed by the timeless design, its functionality and simplicity. But for the modern day, not enough models were available. This inspired Janssen Furniture to create a special studio in their factory with a dedicated team of designers which resulted in: the STUDIO GLOBE WERNICKE!

This team targets to keep the simplicity of the original and translate that to the modern world and its needs.

Eventually, a complete new product line was introduced with an innovative character but still recognizable.

The original single connectors have been replaced by newly designed double connectors which makes this famous bookcase even stronger.

All modules are suitable for the most modern offices, libraries, and homes.

All today's and future demands are being translated into user friendly Studio Globe Wernicke settings.
